Third Annual Cooking School Opens Monday

500 Women Visit Theater To Hear Miss Garrett Open

Admission Free—Lectures—Demonstration Daily at 1:30 O'Clock

PUBLIC IS INVITED
Housewives of Hope and Southwest Arkansas Urged to Attend

More than 500 housewives of Hope and Southwest Arkansas thronged the main floor of the Saenger theater Monday afternoon to hear Miss Rada Sue Garrett open the Star's third annual free cooking school for the Hope trade area.

Merchandise displays of local firms and national food advertisers crowded the theater lobby, while on the stage there was set a model kitchen with Miss Garrett as the presiding genius.

Start 1:30 Promptly
Miss Garrett opened the first lecture-demonstration period promptly at 1:30. The crowd at that time was slim, owing possibly to the fact that previous cooking schools had started every afternoon at 1:30 on the dot, so that the school may be concluded not later than 3:30 each session.

Approximately 30 firms and trademarks are represented in the co-operative group which is assisting the Star in its third annual Cooking School, and which bids fair to be the finest in the history of the newspaper.

Admission Free
Admission to the Saenger is absolutely free. Through Maito Theaters, Inc., and their local manager, Elliott Johnson, the big auditorium has been loaned to the newspaper and the merchants of Hope for this great culinary fair.

At the opening session Monday Miss Garrett lectured on brown bread, scalloped corn and ham, cheesy carrots, pear salad, cakes and parfait, demonstrating each recipe as she announced it, preparing the meal in the model kitchen on the stage.

Hope Business & Professional Women's Club Sponsors Local Woman for President State Federation at Convention This Week in El Dorado

Hope will offer a well known local business woman as candidate for state president when the Arkansas Federation Business & Professional Women's clubs meet in annual convention at El Dorado this week, April 23-24-25. She is Mrs. Margaret Simms McDonald, a charter member of the Hope club and an officer of the state federation for nearly two years. She has served for the last year as state chairman of publicity, and before that was state transportation chairman for part of a term.

Mrs. McDonald, who for the last several months has been in Little Rock, continues to be an active member of the Hope club. She has served as its president, vice-president, club chairman, hostess at the club's birthday party, and as a member of innumerable committees.

Her business career has been continuously with the Hope Fertilizer company, entering its employ upon finishing her schooling. Besides owning stock in the corporation for more than 10 years, she has been secretary-treasurer and a member of the board of directors for the last five.

Mrs. McDonald's publicity work in behalf of the state federation has produced some striking results during the last year, and has led the Hope club to sponsor her candidacy for state president at the El Dorado convention.

The year's publicity campaign has focused the state's attention upon a $5,000 revolving fund through which the state federation has enabled 95 girls to further their education. Mrs. McDonald's writings have also carried to the public the fact that a large percentage of Arkansas business women are either owners of businesses or hold executive positions in them; and that the professions occupied by women in this state range all the way from deputy United States marshal, land commissioners, doctors and justices of the peace, to deans of women colleges.

Through Mrs. McDonald's management the past year, National Business Women's week resulted in the issuing of special editions of newspapers by the clubs of the following cities: Warren, McGhee, Fayetteville, Malvern, El Dorado, Arkadelphia and Little Rock and special window displays by merchants honoring the clubs of Pine Bluff, Hope, Little Rock, Fayetteville, Hot Springs, El Dorado and Marianna.

Among other achievements, Mrs. McDonald interviewed Mrs. Pearl Peden Oldfield, Arkansas congresswoman, and syndicated her views on congress as a career for women in many newspapers throughout the nation.

The little girl was held for eight hours by a kidnaper, who officers said attacked her.

The sheriff said that the farmer was only being held for investigation.

They Helped Atkins

The Star presents below the names that were signed to two petitions to the governor asking clemency for William R. Atkins, convicted cashier of the Bank of McCaskill, who was given an indefinite furlough by Lieutenant Governor Lawrence Wilson, while acting governor last Tuesday.

Lieutenant Governor Wilson failed to furnish The Star with the list, but The Star did succeed in forcing the names to be made available for the Little Rock newspapers Sunday. This is the first time the full list has been published anywhere. It was telegraphed to The Star Monday noon by the Little Rock bureau of the Associated Press. Shaky handwriting accounts for at least two of the names being illegible. The Associated Press accounts for a total of 105 names. Lieutenant Governor Wilson said he had "several hundred." He did. "What Wilson Forgot"

The Star has the following copy of a petition of north Hempstead county citizens opposing clemency for William R. Atkins, with 155 signatures, which was filed at the governor's office last November by J. D. Eley, of McCaskill, and Dr. W. C. Lieut.-Governor "Forgot" Plea to Hold Ex-Cashier

Washburn Replies to Wilson Attack On Hope Star Published in Monday Morning Papers

Alex. H. Washburn, Editor, Hope Star. It's a real pleasure to see someone with backbone. You are 100 per cent right. Keep it up and jail Atkins. A few more bankers in jail and the state would be better off. STANLEY ANDREWS, editor, & publisher ARKANSAS FARMER, Little Rock.

The Arkansas Gazette, the Memphis Commercial Appeal and the Texarkana Gazette, in dispatches from Camden Monday, said: "Alex. Washburn, Hope editor who first criticized Mr. Wilson, promised he would publish the names on the petition if given the lists, Mr. Wilson said today. When asked by Washburn if he will extend clemency to Atkins again if he is convicted on other counts, he has an opportunity to do so, the lieutenant governor replied: 'I'll cross that bridge when I get to it.'"

Washburn's Reply
Mr. Washburn has telegraphed the following reply to all three newspapers: "The lieutenant governor of Arkansas wishes to make me look like a jackass by asking his own questions and writing his own answers. 'I never asked him what he would do about Atkins when he is convicted again. The reason I didn't ask him is because I already know what he will do, and so does the state of Arkansas.'"

"I have heard of a politician denying he answered a question a newspaper man asked, but this is my first experience as a newspaper man denying a question that a politician has answered."

"What the Hope Star is fighting for is to compel the publication of petition lists seeking executive clemency for convicted criminals. The politicians defend their pardons and furloughs, not on the merits of the individual cases, but by saying they have so

What They Say About It:

Editor's Note: The Star is publishing below the editorial comment made by various Arkansas newspapers on our expose of the state pardon mill. Apparently the only paper in the state to defend Lieutenant Governor Wilson's action is the Camden News, published in his home town. Regarding the Camden editor's assertion as to the "divine origin" of furloughs, we shall have something to say in a later issue.

Furlough Brings Caustic Criticism

OUR neighbor over the way, the Hope Star, has allowed itself to be all worked up over a furlough issued by Lieutenant Governor Wilson, a few days ago, to a citizen of Hempstead county who figured in a bank transaction of some sort that brought upon his head a penitentiary sentence, and the displeasure of the Hope editor who thinks that a great wrong was committed and the public outraged when the said offender was not incarcerated behind the prison prison walls of the state to do penance for the wrong he visited upon others and sundry citizens of that county.

If furloughs and pardons were new things and had never been tried in dealing with those who violate the law, we might, with some degree of resentment, question the wisdom and propriety of turning loose upon the world men and women who have run counter to the law and our conception of what punishment is and how much should be meted out to the offender. But furloughs and pardons are as old as the law. They are the basic principle of law. They are divine in origin, and we presume will serve their purpose as long as time lasts.

We are not acquainted with the facts that brought about the prosecution and conviction of the recipient of the furlough issued by Acting Governor Wilson. What we are trying to do is take the sting out of the bitter criticism our neighbor injected into what we are led to believe was honest intentions benevolently bestowed upon an erring citizen who sought and obtained a furlough.

We do not believe, as our contemporary insinuates, that there was a price fixed between Governor Parnell and Acting Governor Wilson, though political it might have been, to turn this man loose. Governor Parnell says he knew nothing about the matter until he saw it in the papers, and Mr. Wilson says a strong petition was presented to him from citizens of Hempstead county asking a furlough for the condemned man. The attorney for the accused is an honorable gentleman of the highest integrity and our friend over in Hempstead county will have to produce the proof before he can convince us that he resorted to questionable methods to secure from Mr. Wilson the liberty for his client he asked for.

Asking the question, "Does politics move so fast nowadays that a lieutenant governor demands the prerogative of the chief executive before it is earned?" is to insinuate that Mr. Wilson demanded of Governor Parnell the prerogative of occupying the governor's chair that he might do certain things that the Governor himself would not do, and the Governor was spineless enough to obey orders from the second in command. Such an indirect charge of a violation of all rules of honor and fair dealing between men who hold high and responsible office in our government should be supported by proof of their insincerity and double dealing if it is to stand alone in the search for excuses with which to condemn them for doing things we do not approve or suit our fancy of justice.

There is no evidence of wrong doing on the part of Mr. Wilson who issued the furlough and we do not believe the shaft of criticism, couched in language that leaves a doubt on the public mind as to his honesty in the matter, was shot from the bow of an unprejudiced mind to carry its poison into the vitals of one who was acting in the best of faith to serve a fellowman.

Thousands of furloughs and pardons have been issued in Arkansas to people who violated the law and we believe the great majority of them were honestly issued, however much we doubted the wisdom of some of them, but that did not and does not now justify us in ascribing questionable motives to the chief executive who was humane enough and charitable enough to absolve them from the penalty the law placed upon them.—Camden News.

The Furlough Scandal

ALEX. WASHBURN, courageous editor of the Hope Star, is vigorously exposing the indefinite furlough of William R. Atkins, convicted McCaskill banker, by acting governor Lawrence E. Wilson. Atkins was a Hempstead county banker and stood under nineteen indictments in connection with the closing of the McCaskill bank. Washburn is attacking what he terms "the state pardon mill".

Atkins was represented in court by an attorney named Haynie. This same Haynie was Wilson's campaign manager for Lieutenant Governor. Gov. Parnell was out of the state

"We Know How"

ON GREENS

When the salad is served between the main course and the dessert, it should be appetizing, light and tart. It should not be too heavy. The fresh simple flavors of greens are most appropriate. Lettuce, endive, cucumbers; or cold vegetables, such as asparagus, Brussels sprouts or string-beans. These salads suggest a tart, stimulating dressing . . . Bachelor Club Dressing, Vinaigrette Dressing, or French Dressing.

To make French Dressing: Six tablespoons of Wesson Oil, one teaspoon of salt, one-fourth teaspoon of pepper, two tablespoons of lemon juice, a dash of paprika, and season to your taste.

ON FRUITS

Fruits, fresh or canned, have a more pronounced flavor than the simple greens. They call for a dressing less sharp, with perhaps a dash of sweetness or the tang of cheese, to encourage them to give us back their sunshine and full fresh flavor.

The next time you have a fruit salad, try this Cheese Dressing: Cream a three-ounce package of cream cheese with two tablespoons of Wesson Oil. Blend teaspoon of salt, one-fourth teaspoon each of white pepper and granulated sugar, two tablespoons Wesson Oil and two of lemon juice. Beat into the cheese until it becomes light and fluffy. Then dust with paprika.

FOR SEAFOOD

When salad is the main dish at a meal, as at luncheon let us say, and boasts the full flavor of lobster, crabmeat, or shrimp, the finished salad should be garnished with Lemonade or Tartar Sauce, but the fish should first have been marinated.

To marinate: Mix six tablespoons Wesson Oil and two tablespoons of vinegar. Add a teaspoon of salt, one-eighth teaspoon of pepper. Pour this over seafood and set aside in the refrigerator for several hours. Serve with Lemonade.

Sauce for the Goose is...

not always Sauce for the Gander

SOME things go well together—like cranberry with turkey, jelly with duck, mint with lamb. And some things do not. Nowadays when we make so many different kinds of salad no one salad dressing will suit every salad.

mix a dressing appropriate to the salad

For instance on crisp, cool greens, a tart dressing such as Vinaigrette Dressing. On fruit, try a sweet dressing such as Bar-le-Duc. Shrimp or fish, on the other hand, should always be marinated* in French Dressing and served with Lemonade or Tartar Sauce.

WE WOULD like to send you with our compliments, a little book by Mary B. Murray on appropriate salad dressings—a book that not only suggests what dressings go with what salads, but which offers many helpful suggestions to the hostess as to correct salad service. "I have attacked Lieutenant Governor Wilson in my newspaper for double-crossing. He voluntarily told the Associated Press one week ago that he would probably act upon two or three applications from Ouachita county (his home) for restoration of citizenship," but "I shall not in any way disturb Governor Farnell's policy"—that statement appeared in the Associated Press all over the state last Tuesday morning, but the ink was hardly dry on it before the lieutenant governor outraged justice and the people of Hempstead county by freeing Atkins before he had actually reached the penitentiary walls."

Mr. Eley said Monday that Governor Farnell promised Dr. Martin and him that "this man will not be flogged." The petitioners said their list of one hundred fifty-five names was left in the files at the governor's office and should therefore have been with the other correspondence in the Atkins case when Lieutenant Governor Wilson issued the order that gave the cashier his freedom.
The McCaskill committee which came to Hope Monday included the following: J. D. Eley, president of the Bank of McCaskill; G. Shuffield, J. M. Gaines and J. Tinsley.
The committee said:
"Dr. Martin, pastor of the First Methodist church of Little Rock, went with Mr. Eley to see Governor Farnell, testified that he was personally acquainted with the signers of the petition against Atkins, that they are of the best citizens of Hempstead county, and that none of them are obligated to Mr. Eley in any way."

New Capital Plan for India Nears Reality

WASHINGTON.—(U.P.)—A new headline has been cropping up in our daily news, the National Geographic Socety says, and that is New Delhi, India. This city is expected to have the same relation to the British Indian Empire that the city of Washington has to the United States.

The general plan of the new Indian capital, the report said, has been made by Sir Edwin Luytens and is similar to L'Enfant's plan for the American Capital.
Located on the Jumna River, the site of New Delhi is within a 45-mile radius of the sites of seven powerful cities raised by Indian potentates, all now in ruins with the exception of Old Delhi, which stands as a tribute

Spring shopping week at the Telephone Office

Have you ever included the telephone office on your spring shopping tour?

If you haven't, spend an interesting half hour there this spring. Learn some of the things that can be done to save you time, work and worry during spring housecleaning time, and add to your pleasure and enjoyment the year round.

Saving Steps for the Housewife

It's no joke to climb up and down the stairs all day. Many a tired woman, at the end of a particularly hard day, vows that woman's work, indeed, is never done.

One solution is an extension telephone... upstairs... or in the kitchen. Or, if you live in a large bungalow or apartment... an extension in a rear bedroom. You'll be surprised at the small cost.

For Housecleaning Victims

If you haven't a telephone already, you'll be surprised to see how one helps. It saves weary shopping trips, brings needed supplies posthaste from drug store or grocery, relieves the monotony of housework by making possible intimate chats with friends. Some folks go so far as to maintain that it soothes the temper and sweetens the disposition!

It's really an asset all the year... helpful in times of pleasure, comfort or emergency. In cost it's just about the cheapest servant you can hire—works for you for a few cents a day. The telephone book is its best testimonial. Most of the names have been there for years.

$2.00 up

Tactics for Cleaning Campaigns

We suggest that you carry your telephone with you during housecleaning time... to basement, bedrooms, sun room. Portable telephones cost comparatively little. You plug them into sockets like floor lamps or vacuum cleaners. Then you answer calls or order groceries and supplies without leaving your work. They're handy, too, for guest room, sick room, sewing room.

Call or visit the telephone office and ask about the services described here. Or talk with any telephone employee (except operators on duty). Your order will be taken care of promptly. SOUTHWESTERN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

For Spring Gardeners...

Lots of folks tell us that when they're outside washing windows or working on spring flower beds, they can't hear the telephone ringing inside.

To them, we recommend extension bells, gongs, or sirens. Put one in your kitchen... it will ring loudly enough to prevent loss of important calls.

If you live with relatives of another name, you can list your name with their telephone number for a few cents a month. Ask for an "extra listing."

MAD MARRIAGE

LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of HEART HUNGRY, etc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GYPSEY MORRIS, 19-year-old New York type, married JIM WALLACE, the day after she broke him out of the house of her wealthy cousin, ANN TROWBRIGHT. Gypsy has been lifted from a year and a half in Paris studying art, Wallace's fiancée has broken their engagement to marry a richer man.

Jim and Gypsy go to Forest City where Jim has a thriving law practice. The relatives and Gypsy's friends are all there. Gypsy's cousin, ANN TROWBRIGHT, Jim's former fiancée, married BROCK PHILLIPS, millionaire son.

Months later Brock Phillips is killed in a fall from a horse. Wallace returns to Forest City. She consults Jim about financial affairs and later tells him her marriage to Phillips was a mistake. She tries to remain loyal to Gypsy but sees her frequently. Gypsy's cousin, ANN TROWBRIGHT, tells of seeing him at luncheon with a girl in a blue dress whom she supposed was Gypsy. Gypsy is sure the girl was Wallace. She tells FRANK GIBSON, whom Jim does not like, and accepts his invitation to drive her home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XL

FOR an instant Gypsy hesitated. She was aware that Gibson was watching her eagerly. There was a faintly bantering light in his eyes. It was as though he were challenging her. "Are you game to go? Will you take the dare?"

The girl's chin lifted. "Yes," she said. "If there's fresh air—cool, fresh air—to be had on the Somerset road let's go there. I haven't had a breath of it for a week."

While she was still speaking Gibson had swung the car around. The rain drops were coming faster now. He seemed to be an expert driver. Gypsy watched the ease with which he handled the car. Surely it was a new one. The brown paint glistened and the upholstery looked so fresh.

"It's a new car, isn't it?" she asked.

"Had it two weeks. Bought it as soon as I got back from the coast. It's too bad to have it out in a storm like this. I got it for. I get my money's worth out of a car. Buy 'em to use 'em. Would you like to drive?"

"Oh, no! I've had a little experience with a battered old flivver but I wouldn't think of trying to drive a car like this! Jim never lets me touch the roadster."

"That so? You ought to learn. Practice is probably all you need. Any time you feel in the mood I'd be glad to come along as instructor—a poor one I'll admit."

Gypsy's smile was a bit nervous. "I'd better not," she said, "unless you want your lovely coupe to be a complete wreck!"

"Well, I'd take my chances. By the way, how is Jim these days? Haven't seen him."

"He's about as usual. Working too hard, I think. He hasn't had a vacation yet and I think he needs it."

Gibson nodded. "That always was Jim. Plugging away! You know the trouble with him is he forgets to enjoy life. What's the use of living if you have to work all the time? That's the way I feel about it."

"Oh, Jim doesn't work all the time. He likes fun."

"Does he? Well, I'm glad to hear that. Say, he made quite a success of a case 'ast spring, didn't he? Girl accused of murder."

"Yes, The Roberts case. It was a wonderful victory."

"I remember now. Read about it in a San Francisco paper. The girl was pretty, wasn't she? What became of her?"

"After she was acquitted she left Forest City and went back to her relatives. She has a better job now and I think she's happy. Of course it was a terrible experience. It will be a long time before she'll get over it."

Gibson nodded. "And how do you like being a lawyer's wife?" he asked. "When the customers are young—and pretty?"

SHE wished he wouldn't look at her that way. She wished he wouldn't say such things. It was more Gibson's tone than the words to which she objected.

But she tried to answer lightly. "Oh, do you think I need to worry?"

"I'll say I don't! Not you."

They were on the Somerset road. It was a narrow ribbon of highway winding a circuitous route on gradually rising ground. The rain poured down steadily. As the coupe swung around the curve the wheels skidded.

It was all over after a breathless instant. Gibson had control of the car. They were moving along smoothly again.

Gypsy, who had seen it all in one terrified moment, drew a deep sigh. "Oh," she said, "for a moment I thought—"

"So did I!" Gibson said sharply. "Well, I won't let that happen again, I assure you!"

They drove silently for a few moments. Gypsy was thinking that if the young man had been watching the road instead of looking at her the near-accident would not have occurred. Probably he knew how to drive all right when he kept his mind on driving.

"Do you notice how much cooler it is out here?" he asked presently.

"Much cooler," she agreed. "I wonder if the rain is going to last all evening. The sky doesn't seem any lighter."

"You can't tell about these summer storms. Anyhow, the longer it lasts the more pleased some people will be."

"Our garden needs it," Gypsy began and then she stopped. She wished she had not come for this foolish drive. She should have waited until the storm was over or taken a taxi. Now she was doing the very thing for which she had condemned Jim.

Suddenly she wondered if Frank Gibson had heard gossip about her and Jim. Was that why he had suggested the drive? Was that why he looked at her with that smile that seemed to say more than he should? She had always heard men were worse gossip than women.

"I think," Gypsy said, "that we should be turning back now."

"All right. Just as you say. We'll turn at the next crossroads."

Silence settled between them. Gypsy was thinking about Jim and Marcia. She would talk to Jim after dinner that evening. It must all be settled very quickly. She began to plan what she would say.

Afterward she could never tell exactly what had happened. There was the moment when she saw the other car swerve crazily. Gibson swore. Gypsy felt the coupe reel and screamed.

SHE had never seen the man who was bending over her. He had a round face and wore spectacles. "Do you think," he was saying, "that if I help you you can stand?"

Gypsy moved and a twinge of pain shot through her left foot. She discovered that she was lying on the ground. A man's coat was under her and her clothing was half-drenched. The rain was still falling.

"What—what happened?" she asked in a small voice.

"Another car crashed into yours. How do you feel now?"

"My foot hurts," Gypsy told him. "The left one." She tried to draw herself up to sitting position but the movement brought a quick exclamation of pain.

"Here—let me take your arm," the man said. "See if we can't make it easier. Are you ready now?"

Gently he lifted her. The left foot ached but Gypsy set her lips and endured it. Her shoulder pained her too. She looked down and saw that her arm was bleeding. "That's nothing," the stranger said, noting her glance. "Just a scratch. Pretty badly lacerated, isn't it? Don't try to stand on that foot! Lean against me."

The girl did as she was told. Her entire body seemed to be a mass of aches and bruises. She was cold. Now she was beginning to remember what had happened.

The brown coupe sprang in the ditch at the side of the road. A few yards back stood a large touring car.

"Where is Mr. Gibson?" she asked. "Was he hurt?"

The man nodded toward a figure at the other side of the coupe. "Your friend seems to be knocked out," he said. "If we can get you into my car I'll see what I can do."

Cautiously, leaning on the stranger's arm, Gypsy limped toward the touring car. There were questions she wanted to ask but it was all the girl could do to set her teeth and endure the agony.

"Think we'd better get you to a doctor," the man said as he noted the grimace when she settled herself in the rear seat of the touring car. "That foot pains a lot, doesn't it?"

She nodded. "You'd better—go back to—Mr. Gibson."

A tall figure in clothing that had once been white came hobbling toward them. The stranger turned.

"Well! You look all right. I thought you'd taken the count!"

Gibson rubbed his head. "What was the damn fool trying to do?" he grumbled. "Kill us? Where's his car?"

The stranger shook his head. "The other fellow didn't even stop," he said. "Must have been drunk judging from the way he was driving. I was behind and saw him weaving from one side of the road to the other. Crash must have come when I didn't see it. When I got here the other car was way down the road and yours was in the ditch."

"Roadster, wasn't it?" Gibson asked. "I didn't have a chance. The idiot deliberately ran into us. He burst into vigorous profanity. 'My name's Mason,' the other man volunteered. 'Fred Mason. I live in Somerset. The young lady seems to have hurt her foot badly and I think she ought to get to a doctor."

"Are you hurt, Mrs. Wallace?" Gibson demanded, for the first time showing interest in the girl.

"My ankle. The left one," she told him. "Otherwise I guess I'm all right."

"You'd better let me take you two into Forest City," Mason suggested. "You'll have to have help with that car anyhow. Looks to me like a bad smash-up."

"Looks like a wreck all right," Gibson agreed. "I'm Frank Gibson, Mr. Mason, and this is Mrs. Wallace. If you could take her back to town and let me off at the nearest farm house it would certainly be a big favor. I can telephone the garage and get someone out here before dark."

Mason nodded. "O. K. with me," he said. The two men climbed into the front seat of the touring car and Mason started the engine. In 10 minutes they drew up beside a farm house. Gibson walked to the door and knocked. A moment later someone answered. He waved, signaling the others to go on, and entered the house.

Gypsy's foot was throbbing. At every jerk and jolt as the car moved along she clenched her fists and tried to keep from crying out. Tears came into her eyes and she did not bother to brush them away. Sometimes the pain was so great she could not help moaning.

As they neared the city limits Mason turned. "Where do you want me to take you, Mrs. Wallace?"

"I'd like to go to my own home," she said, and gave him the address.

"Don't you think you'd better stop at a doctor's office?"

"No, thank you. All I want is to get home!" She leaned back and closed her eyes. If only this would prove to be a nightmare! If only she could open her eyes and find that the hideous afternoon had been a dream!

It was not a dream. The pain in her foot told her that. She looked out and discovered that the rain had stopped. Dusk was gathering. It must be nearly six o'clock.

"This the place?" Mason asked, slowing the car before a brick dwelling.

"No. The next house. There's a driveway leading in."

A moment later the car halted. Mason got out but before he had reached the porch the front door opened. Jim Wallace appeared.

"Who is it you wanted to see?" Jim asked. He looked at the car. "Gypsy—!" he exclaimed excitedly. "What's happened? What's the matter?"

"Mrs. Wallace was in an accident," Mason explained. "I came along a few minutes later and she asked me to bring her here. I'm afraid one of her ankles may be broken or badly sprained. You'd better call a doctor."

Jim Wallace rushed past him. "Tell me what happened, Gypsy," he demanded.

"It's—nothing, Jim. I'll be all right."

He helped her from the car, his arm around her. For an instant she steadied herself against him, looking up into his face.

"It's nothing," she repeated in a weak voice. Immediately she fainted.

HOPE STAR COOKING SCHOOL

MISS RADA SUE GARRETT

BROWN BREAD
1 Cup Molasses
2 Teaspoons soda
1 Cup flour
1 Cup dates, raisins or prunes
1 teaspoon Morton's Salt
2 cups sour milk
2 cups Graham Flour

Mix milk and molasses. Add soda and mix well. Add remaining dry ingredients and fruit. Pour in shallow buttered pan and bake in a slow oven 45 minutes to 1 hour.

SCALLOPED CORN AND HAM
Place one cup of corn in buttered baking dish; spread over it 1-4 cup cracker crumbs, and 1-2 cup ground boiled ham; dot with one teaspoon butter and sprinkle with salt. Add another cup of corn and once more spread with 1-4 cup cracker crumbs. Dot with one teaspoon butter, and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Pour over it enough milk to cover, about one cupful, and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven, 375 degrees F. (Serves six)

CHEESED CARROTS
1 Tablespoon flour
1-2 cup grated cheese
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-2 cup macaroni
1-2 cup diced cooked carrots
3-4 cup milk

Mix the flour with mild American Cheese, finely chopped or grated, salt and milk. Put into medium-sized casserole and mix well. Then stir in one cup macaroni, broken into small pieces and cooked, and the carrots. Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, for 20 minutes, covered. Serve piping hot.

PEAR SALAD
Place a half of a canned pear on a nest of shredded lettuce—and fill hollow with American Cheese dressing. Decorate with three large raisins.
AMERICAN CHEESE DRESSING—Mix six tablespoons of Wesson Oil, one tablespoon of lemon juice, a tablespoon of orange juice, a half teaspoon of salt, 3-4 teaspoon of sugar, a half teaspoon of paprika, and one-third of a cup of grated American Cheese—Beat until ingredients are thoroughly combined.

LADY BETTY CAKE
1-2 cup Snowdrift
1-2 cups sugar
4 eggs
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup milk
3 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 cup chopped nuts
1-2 cups flour

Cream Snowdrift thoroughly and add sugar; beating continually. Add yolks of eggs, beat well. Sift together flour, salt and baking powder and add nuts. Add this flour mixture and the milk alternately a little at a time to the egg and sugar mixture; mix thoroughly and add the chocolate which has been melted, just before the last of the flour. Fold in the beaten egg whites. Pour into a well-greased and floured nine-inch tube pan and bake in moderate oven at 325 F. about one hour and a quarter. Turn out and cool. Cover top and sides with chocolate icing. Makes loaf about 3 1/2 inches high.

MAPLE PARFAIT
1-2 teaspoon gelatine
1 tablespoon cold water
6 egg yolks
1 cup hot maple syrup
1 pint cream
1 tablespoon vanilla

Sink gelatine in cold water five minutes. Pour the hot maple syrup over the egg yolks. Cook in double boiler until the mixture thickens. Add the gelatine and stir until cool. Fold in the stiffly beaten cream. Add vanilla and pour into freezing pans. Freeze without stirring until mixture holds shape. Serve in parfait glasses. (Makes eight servings.)

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting..... Itching, bleeding, protruding piles are caused by bad circulation of the blood in the affected parts. The parts become weak, flabby, almost dead. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause—that's why salves, suppositories and cutting fail. Dr. Leonard's prescription, HEM-ROID, succeeds because it removes congestion, restores circulation, heals and strengthens the diseased parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record of quick ending even piles of long standing, that Ward & Son says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your pile agony or money back. Adv.

Prescott furnished work to 64 men who were paid $880 in wages and the City also paid into the Community Fund $150, making a total of $1,030 paid by the City in addition to wages paid regular employees.

During 1930, on account of the unemployment situation, the City waived the collection of street taxes, amounting to $1,200. The council does not feel that the employment situation is such this year to justify the collection of the street tax, and this means an additional $1,200 to be waived. The street tax waived and the money paid out to furnish employment totals $2,430.

During the months of January, February and March, 1931 the collections of the water and light department were $3,427 less than the collections for corresponding months of 1930. This simply means that the people have used $3,427 less of water and lights the first quarter of 1931 than they did in 1930.

The expenditure of $1,030 during the winter for relief as above stated means that that much work ordinarily done during summer months has been done during the winter and the work to be done by the City this summer will be considerably less than usual.
